
There's more to National Geographic than just a beautiful magazine; they're also one of the premier providers of detailed topographical maps for outdoor adventures. Their expertly researched and frequently updated Trails Illustrated maps are one of the most popular destination-based hiking map series' for sale on the market today...and its just gotten even better. They've just combined forces with the popular website
AllTrails.com
to release their
Ultimate Outdoor MapKit
, which includes access to all of their Trails Illustrated maps in addition to a full topographic base layer map, a one-year pro level membership to All Trails, and integration with the Google-based street, satellite, and terrain maps you've come to love. It even includes a full function mobile app for iOS and Android with GPS tracking.
